Innovative products of high value made in Bamberg, Germany

With BELSANA Medical Products you have found a reliable and strong partner in the health care market. Since 1991 BELSANA has supported customers world-wide in providing venous patients with medical compression stockings.

Under the umbrella of INDUS Holding AG, BELSANA is one of the most prestigious specialist providers in the German pharmacy market. Right from the start, the aim was to provide a range of medical compression stockings focussing on the individual needs of patients with vein disorders. The range of modern compression stockings from BELSANA has meanwhile become one of the most important lines in the entire market for health aids: Fine qualities, a wide selection of colours, individual made-to-measure solutions and rapid delivery give our customers the best possible support in their endeavour to comply optimally with the requirements of compression therapy.

With pioneering innovations, such as compression stockings with microfibres (BELSANA microsoft), comfort zones (BELSANA comfortis), merino wool (BELSANA impuls) or contemporary support and compression stockings with moisturising aloe vera (BELSANA vital Edition and BELSANA vivere), BELSANA guarantees high-tech products of the highest quality. Besides this, the basic programme has been supplemented by interesting complementary products over the years. In particular, the attractive and extensive range of over-the-counter support and travel stockings ensures customers are offered products of the highest quality in the area of prophylaxis as well.

And what's more, BELSANA has just the right products when it comes to sports. BELSANA sport are sport socks and stockings with True Medical Compression, ensuring less fatigue, faster regeneration and enhanced performance.

BELSANA compression and support stockings are made in Bamberg, Germany, in line with the strictest standards of quality. The company is therefore certified according to DIN EN ISO 13485, its products bearing the CE mark. The medical compression stockings from BELSANA also correspond to the strictest international quality and test provisions of RAL-GZ 387/1 and 2. Refined quality management, coupled with the development of new top products and first-class service for our customers, means that the company can grow on a firm and lasting basis.

BELSANA Quality control

The quality of medical compression stockings contributes significantly not only to wearing comfort but also to medical efficacy. Modern technological innovation ensures the high quality level of our products as documented and certified regularly by independent testing institutes.

RAL Quality Seal

Our medical compression stockings meet the standards of the RAL-Norm, the strictest norm worldwide for the production of medical compression stockings.

The RAL Quality Seal on the packaging of our medical compression stockings guarantees that our products meet this norm. The RAL guidelines are set by the "Gütezeichengemeinschaft" who decides, in cooperation with the "German Society of Phlebology", the standards (quality and technical specifications) required for the production of medical compression stockings.

The independent Hohenstein research institute carries out tests to verify the requirements set by RAL are met and principally on the basis of:

- pressure gradation
- fibre analysis
- knitting structure
- chemical analysis

The Öko-Tex Standard 100 is a testing and certification system for textile products. Öko-Tex Standard 100 guarantees that certified products observe strict limits on the use of certain materials and dyes. This certified standard applies to all BELSANA compression stockings.

CE compliance with European directives

The CE marking serves as a "passport" for the Single European Market and allows BELSANA products to circulate freely throughout the European market. It indicates compliance with the requirements for medical products according to the European directive 93/42 EWG and the German law on medical products (MPG).

DIN EN ISO 9001 /
DIN EN ISO 13485

Our products meet the highest quality standards and are produced according to the quality management system DIN EN ISO 9001 / DIN EN ISO 13485. This certificate documents process oriented operations and the optimisation of in-house production structures. The continuous improvement of processes is guaranteed by regular external audits.

Medical compression stockings vs. support stockings

BELSANA products are divided into two categories:

Medical compression stockings and support stockings. Both product categories principally work in the same way: they help the blood in the veins to flow back from the foot to the heart by exerting pressure on the legs. The pressure is the highest in the ankle and decreases in the direction of the heart. This accelerates the return circulation to the heart and the blood circulation in the leg is significantly improved.

Medical compression stockings	Support stockings
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • While support stockings can be purchased over the counter, medical compression stockings are generally prescribed by a physician for therapeutic purposes in the case of a venous disease. • Medical compression stockings guarantee a precisely defined and appropriate level of pressure on the dilated veins of the legs. They should be worn on a long-term daily basis. • On the basis of his diagnosis, the physician determines the compression class as well as the specific application. The spectrum ranges from knee high stockings to tights and special designs for men and pregnant women are also available. • It is essential to find the most suitable design for each individual to guarantee optimal efficacy. • BELSANA medical compression stockings are available in standard sizes as well as made-to-measure. The correct choice is made by taking the precise measurements of the patient's legs. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • By contrast, support stockings are worn by healthy persons as a preventive measure against venous problems. • They are thinner than compression stockings and the pressure on the leg is not as high as with compression stockings. Nevertheless, they actively support the blood flow in the legs. • They are optically indistinguishable from normal stockings and are recommended especially for all activities involving prolonged sitting or standing or during longer flights or car journeys.
	Anti embolism stockings (TED stockings) Both categories should not be mistaken for anti-embolism stockings (also known as TED stockings – Thrombo-Embolic Deterrent), which are designed for bed-confined patients and aim at preventing thrombo-embolic disease.

Compression classes and designs

The level of pressure exerted on the legs depends on the seriousness of the patient's condition: in principle, the greater the damage to the venous system is and the softer the connective tissue has become, the stronger and thicker the compression stockings must be.

The RAL-Norm distinguishes between four compression classes (Ccl.)

Compression class	Indications
1 = slight compression (18–21 mm Hg)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • as a preventive measure • heavy and tired legs • minor varicose veins without any significant edema susceptibility • varicose veins during pregnancy
2 = medium compression (23–32 mm Hg)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • greater discomfort • more pronounced varicose veins with an edema susceptibility • post traumatic swelling • after the healing process of insignificant ulcerations • after superficial thrombophlebitis, sclerotherapy and operations on varicose veins
3 = firm compression (34–46 mm Hg)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • constitutional or post thrombotic venous insufficiency • serious edema susceptibility • secondary varicose veins • white atrophy • after the healing process of serious, recurrent ulcerations
4 = very firm compression (49 mm Hg and more)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • lymphatic edema • elephantiasis

Instead of one stocking in compression class 4, it is recommended that two stockings in lower compression classes can be worn one on top of the other, as they are easier to put on.

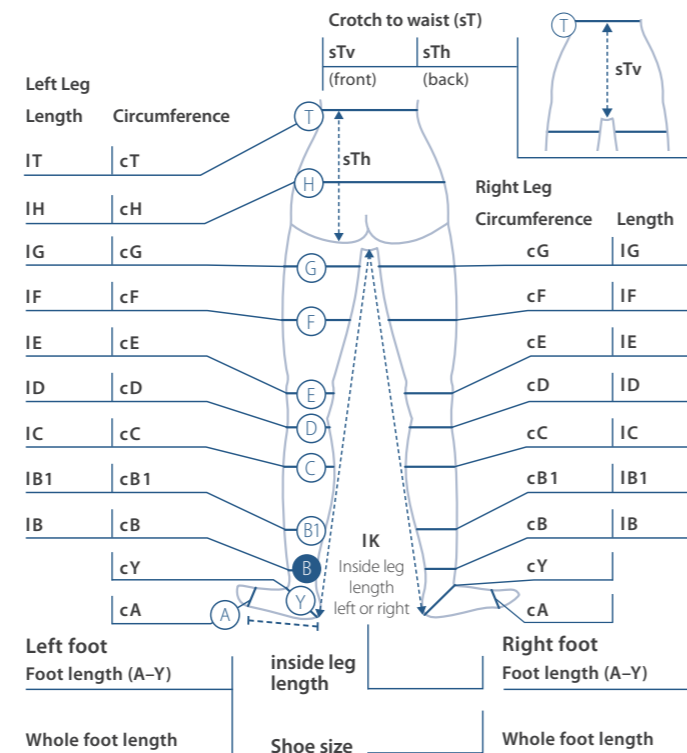

All indications and contra-indications can be found in our packaging inlays.

Taking measurements for round- & flatknitted compression stockings

For a perfect fit and medically proper pressure gradation, it is essential that leg measurements be taken with due care and precision. Perfectly fitting stockings prevent the development of congestion and improve the acceptance by patients of compression therapy.

- Legs must be free of clothing and free of edema (finger pressure test in the ankle area – an indentation will persist after the pressure is relieved in case of edema)
- Measurements should be taken in the morning or immediately upon the removal of a compression bandage
- The leg should be measured in a standing position
- Each leg must be measured separately
- The circumference should be measured first (mark measuring points with a suitable pen, e.g. BELSANA kohl pencil)
- Measurements should be taken from the feet upwards
- Flatknitted compression stockings have to be measured tighter than roundknitted stockings. For special advice, please contact the export team.

Please note: when choosing the variable soft toe (BELSANA comfortis) please fill in the whole foot length and the foot length (A-Y) for both feet. The difference must be a minimum of 5 cm and a maximum of 10 cm!

Please see measuring points stipulated in the table. (all measurements in cm)

Taking measurements for flatknitted compression foot and toe part

- To measure the toes your patient should be either in a sitting or lying position
- The foot and toe measurements are taken without stretching the measuring tape and the toe measurements in particular must be taken with millimeter accuracy
- Toe No 5 is only seldom affected and is therefore only stockings when an edema is present there
- To be able to measure the foot's length so that the measurements are compatible with the circumference measurements, you should mark individual measuring points with a suitable pen, e.g. BELSANA kohl pencil

- Use for measuring toe circumferences the toe measuring tape, which can be simply placed around the single toes

Please see measuring points stipulated in the table. (all measurements in cm)

Taking measurements for flatknitted compression sleeves

Correct and exact measurement is the crucial requirement if a compression arm sleeve is to have a good fit and provide the right medical pressure flow.

- Arms must be free of clothing and free of edema
- Measurements of the arm should be taken on the inside of the arm hanging downwards (the elbow automatically being included in the process)

- It should be measured in the morning or immediately upon the removal of a compression bandage
- The circumference should be measured first (mark measuring points with a suitable pen, e.g. BELSANA kohl pencil)

- Hand and fingers must be free of edema
- Measurements of the hand should be taken on the inside of the palm
- It should be measured in the morning or immediately upon the removal of a compression bandage

Medical compression stockings: The rubber stocking? A relict of the past!

Compression therapy can be a surprisingly pleasant experience. Why? Because today's medical compression stockings in no way resemble the thick rubber stockings of the past. We use highly modern materials and processes and offer a wide selection of colours and other fashion elements, such as the elegant lace grip top. Wearing medical stockings has never been so pleasurable.

BELSANA medical compression stocking qualities

BELSANA medical compression stockings are available in round-knitted and flat-knitted qualities, each available in various compression classes. A general rule for the choice of a medical compression stocking quality is: the stronger the indication, the more a non-elastic quality is needed.

Support stockings: Freedom for your legs!

Swollen feet? Legs heavy as lead? Not only women experience this problem: men also recognize the symptoms after standing or sitting at work all day. Or after a long journey by plane or by car. Long periods of standing or sitting can trigger blood congestion in the veins, leading to a gradual enlargement of the vein walls. Support stockings with the correct pressure distribution that decreases from the foot upwards promote the flow of blood and are therefore an ideal preventative measure for both men and women. BELSANA support stockings are fashionable and available in a wide variety of colours and designs.

The silver fibre in the BELSANA diabetic sock has special properties that are ideally suited to help prevent typical foot problems suffered by diabetics.

Hygiene through anti-bacterial effect of the silver

The silver fibre content transforms one's sweat. Bacteria reduction is achieved and, as a result, there is no unpleasant odour build-up. The speed of the reduction process plays a major role, as germs and fungi are prevented from reproducing and spreading themselves.

Optimum foot climate

Silver is the element with the highest degree of conductivity. This property makes it possible that the foot climate is regulated in a natural way. Body heat is stored during the cold season and returned to the body. In the case of warm outside temperatures body heat is transferred outwards.

Outstanding wearing comfort

BELSANA soft is in order to prevent pressure points almost totally knitted without seams. The antimicrobial properties of silver develop directly on the skin and ensure a sustained feeling of freshness. The soft trim of the special diabetic sock also creates a most pleasant feeling of comfort. Constricting rubber threads have been totally dispensed with.
